

Bristol Parent Power

Parent Power builds parent and carer communities across the UK, each one supported by a local partnership. Through support to develop community organising skills, as well as advice and guidance on accessing higher education, parents and carers are empowered to ensure their children have a fair chance in education and their future careers.

Bristol Parent Power launched in November 2025, since then they have held two meetings, with their third to be in March 2026, bringing together dozens of parents and carers. The University of Bristol and UWE have delivered information and guidance on accessing higher Education.

Parents and carers, supported by their Community Organisers are beginning to identify local barriers to accessing university and will work on developing campaigns around these.

“We’re really excited to be part of such an important project for families in the communities we serve in Bristol. Raising ambition and aspiration is a key focus at the CLF, the launch of a Parent Power chapter in the area is a vital step to ensure parents and carers feel confident supporting their children to achieve their potential.”

Andrew Bell, Partnerships Manager - Cabot Learning Federation

“Being the first Community Organiser for Bristol Parent Power is an incredible opportunity to help families see that higher education is within reach for their children. When parents are informed and confident, they become the strongest advocates for their children’s futures.”
